THE PANORAMA.

THE PANORAMA.

THROUGH the long hall the shuttered windows shed
A dubious light on every up-turned head, —
On locks like those of Absalom the fair,
On the bald apex ringed with scanty hair,
On blank indifference and on curious stare ;
On the pale Showman reading from his stage
The hieroglyphics of that facial page ;
Half sad, half scornful, listening to the bruit
Of restless cane-tap and impatient foot,
And the shrill call, across the general din,
“ Roll up your curtain ! Let the show begin ! ”

At length a murmur like the winds that break
Into green waves the prairie's grassy lake,
Deepened and swelled to music clear and loud,
And, as the west wind lifts a summer cloud,

The curtain rose, disclosing wide and far
A green land stretching to the evening star,
Fair rivers, skirted by primeval trees
And flowers hummed over by the desert bees,
Marked by tall bluffs whose slopes of greenness show
Fantastic outcrops of the rock below, —
The slow result of patient Nature's pains,
And plastic fingering of her sun and rains, —
Arch, tower, and gate, grotesquely-windowed hall,
And long escarpment of half-crumbled wall,
Huger than those which, from steep hills of vine,
Stare through their loop-holes on the travelled Rhine;
Suggesting vaguely to the gazer's mind
A fancy, idle as the prairie wind,
Of the land's dwellers in an age unguessed —
The unsung Jotuns of the mystic West.

Beyond, the prairie's sea-like swells surpass
The Tartar's marvels of his Land of Grass,
Vast as the sky against whose sunset shores
Wave after wave the billowy greenness pours;
And, onward still, like islands in that main
Loom the rough peaks of many a mountain chain,

Whence East and West a thousand waters run
From Winter lingering under Summer's sun.
And, still beyond, long lines of foam and sand
Tell where Pacific rolls his waves a-land,
From many a wide-lapped port and land-locked bay,
Opening with thunderous pomp the world's highway
To Indian isles of spice, and marts of far Cathay.

“Such,” said the Showman, as the curtain fell,
“Is the new Canaan of our Israel —
The land of promise to the swarming North,
Which, hive-like, sends its annual surplus forth,
To the poor Southron on his worn-out soil,
Scathed by the curses of unnatural toil ;
To Europe's exiles seeking home and rest,
And the lank nomads of the wandering West,
Who, asking neither, in their love of change
And the free bison's amplitude of range,
Rear the log hut, for present shelter meant,
Not future comfort, like an Arab's tent.”

Then spake a shrewd on-looker. “Sir,” said he,
“I like your picture, but I fain would see
A sketch of what your promised land will be

When, with electric nerve, and fiery-brained,
With Nature's forces to its chariot chained,
The future grasping, by the past obeyed,
The twentieth century rounds a new decade."

Then said the Showman, sadly: "He who grieves
Over the scattering of the Sibyl's leaves
Unwisely mourns. Suffice it, that we know
What needs must ripen from the seed we sow;
That present time is but the mould wherein
We cast the shapes of holiness and sin.
A painful watcher of the passing hour,
Its lust of gold, its strife for place and power;
Its lack of manhood, honor, reverence, truth,
Wise-thoughted age, and generous-hearted youth;
Nor yet unmindful of each better sign —
The low, far lights, which on th' horizon shine,
Like those which sometimes tremble on the rim
Of clouded skies when day is closing dim,
Flashing athwart the purple spears of rain
The hope of sunshine on the hills again: —
I need no prophet's word, nor shapes that pass
Like clouding shadows o'er a magic glass;

For now, as ever, passionless and cold,
Doth the dread angel of the future hold
Evil and good before us, with no voice
Or warning look to guide us in our choice ;
With spectral hands outreaching through the gloom
The shadowy contrasts of the coming doom.
Transferred from these, it now remains to give
The sun and shade of Fate's alternative."

Then, with a burst of music, touching all
The keys of thrifty life — the mill-stream's fall,
The engine's pant along its quivering rails,
The anvil's ring, the measured beat of flails,
The sweep of scythes, the reaper's whistled tune,
Answering the summons of the bells of noon,
The woodman's hail along the river shores,
The steamboat's signal, and the dip of oars, —
Slowly the curtain rose from off a land
Fair as God's garden. Broad on either hand
The golden wheat-fields glimmered in the sun,
And the tall maize its yellow tassels spun.
Smooth highways set with hedge-rows living green,
With steepled towns through shaded vistas seen,

The schoolhouse murmuring with its hive-like swarm,
The brook-bank whitening in the grist-mill's storm,
The painted farm-house shining through the leaves
Of fruited orchards bending at its eaves,
Where live again, around the Western hearth,
The homely old-time virtues of the North ;
Where the blithe housewife rises with the day,
And well-paid labor counts his task a play.
And, grateful tokens of a Bible free,
And the free Gospel of Humanity,
Of diverse sects and differing names the shrines,
One in their faith, whate'er their outward signs,
Like varying strophes of the same sweet hymn
From many a prairie's swell and river's brim,
A thousand church-spires sanctify the air
Of the calm Sabbath, with their sign of prayer.

Like sudden night-fall over bloom and green
The curtain dropped : and, momentarily, between
The clank of fetter and the crack of thong,
Half sob, half laughter, music swept along —
A strange refrain, whose idle words and low,
Like drunken mourners, kept the time of woe ;

As if the revellers at a masquerade
Heard in the distance funeral marches played.
Such music, dashing all his smiles with tears,
The thoughtful voyager on Ponchartrain hears,
Where, through the noonday dusk of wooded shores,
The negro boatman, singing to his oars,
With a wild pathos borrowed of his wrong
Redeems the jargon of his senseless song.
“Look,” said the Showman, sternly, as he rolled
His curtain upward; “Fate’s reverse behold!”

A village straggling in loose disarray
Of vulgar newness, premature decay;
A tavern, crazy with its whiskey brawls,
With “Slaves at Auction!” garnishing its walls.
Without, surrounded by a motley crowd,
The shrewd-eyed salesman, garrulous and loud,
A squire or colonel in his pride of place,
Known at free fights, the caucus, and the race,
Prompt to proclaim his honor without blot,
And silence doubters with a ten-pace shot,
Mingling the negro-driving bully’s rant
With pious phrase and democratic cant,

Yet never scrupling, with a filthy jest,
To sell the infant from its mother's breast,
Break through all ties of wedlock, home, and kin,
Yield shrinking girlhood up to gray-beard sin ;
Sell all the virtues with his human stock,
The Christian graces on his auction-block,
And coolly count on shrewdest bargains driven
In hearts regenerate, and in souls forgiven !

Look once again ! The moving canvas shows
A slave plantation's slovenly repose,
Where, in rude cabins rotting midst their weeds,
The human chattel eats, and sleeps, and breeds ;
And, held a brute, in practice, as in law,
Becomes in fact the thing he 's taken for.
There, early summoned to the hemp and corn,
The nursing mother leaves her child new-born ;
There haggard sickness, weak and deathly faint,
Crawls to his task, and fears to make complaint ;
And sad-eyed Rachels, childless in decay,
Weep for their lost ones sold and torn away !
Of ampler size the master's dwelling stands,
In shabby keeping with his half-tilled lands, —

The gates unhinged, the yard with weeds unclean,
The cracked veranda with a tipsy lean.
Without, loose-scattered like a wreck adrift,
Signs of misrule and tokens of unthrift ;
Within, profusion to discomfort joined,
The listless body and the vacant mind ;
The fear, the hate, the theft and falsehood, born
In menial hearts of toil, and stripes, and scorn !
There, all the vices, which, like birds obscene,
Batten on slavery loathsome and unclean,
From the foul kitchen to the parlor rise,
Pollute the nursery where the child-heir lies,
Taint infant lips beyond all after cure,
With the fell poison of a breast impure ;
Touch boyhood's passions with the breath of flame,
From girlhood's instincts steal the blush of shame.
So swells from low to high, from weak to strong,
The tragic chorus of the baleful wrong ;
Guilty or guiltless, all within its range
Feel the blind justice of its sure revenge.

Still scenes like these the moving chart reveals.
Up the long western steppes the blighting steals ;

Down the Pacific slope the evil Fate
 Glides like a shadow to the Golden Gate :
 From sea to sea the drear eclipse is thrown,
 From sea to sea the Mauvaisés Terres have grown,
 A belt of curses on the New World's zone !

The curtain fell. All drew a freer breath,
 As men are wont to do when mournful death
 Is covered from their sight. The Showman stood
 With drooping brow in sorrow's attitude
 One moment, then with sudden gesture shook
 His loose hair back, and with the air and look
 Of one who felt, beyond the narrow stage
 And listening group, the presence of the age,
 And heard the footsteps of the things to be,
 Poured out his soul in earnest words and free.

“O, friends!” he said, “in this poor trick of paint

You see the semblance, incomplete and faint,
 Of the two-fronted Future, which, to-day,
 Stands dim and silent, waiting in your way.
 To-day, your servant, subject to your will ;
 To-morrow, master, or for good or ill.

If the dark face of Slavery on you turns,
If the mad curse its paper barrier spurns,
If the world granary of the West is made
The last foul market of the slaver's trade,
Why rail at fate? The mischief is your own.
Why hate your neighbor? Blame yourselves alone!

Men of the North! The South you charge with wrong

Is weak and poor, while you are rich and strong.
If questions, — idle and absurd as those
The old-time monks and Paduan doctors chose, —
Mere ghosts of questions, tariffs and dead banks,
And scarecrow pontiffs, never broke your ranks,
Your thews united could, at once, roll back
The jostled nation to its primal track.
Nay, were you simply steadfast, manly, just,
True to the faith your fathers left in trust,
If stainless honor outweighed in your scale
A codfish quintal or a factory bale,
Full many a noble heart (and such remain
In all the South, like Lot in Siddim's plain,
Who watch and wait, and from the wrong's control
Keep white and pure their chastity of soul),

Now sick to loathing of your weak complaints,
 Your tricks as sinners, and your prayers as saints,
 Would half-way meet the frankness of your tone,
 And feel their pulses beating with your own.

The North! the South! no geographic line
 Can fix the boundary or the point define,
 Since each with each so closely interblends,
 Where Slavery rises, and where Freedom ends.
 Beneath your rocks the roots, far-reaching, hide
 Of the fell Upas on the Southern side ;
 The tree whose branches in your north winds
 Dropped its young blossoms on Mount Vernon's grave ;
 The nursling growth of Monticello's crest
 Is now the glory of the free North-West ;
 To the wise maxims of her olden school
 Virginia listened from thy lips, Rantoul ;
 Seward's words of power, and Sumner's fresh renown,
 Flow from the pen that Jefferson laid down !
 And when, at length, her years of madness o'er,
 Like the crowned grazer on Euphrates' shore,

From her long lapse to savagery, her mouth
Bitter with baneful herbage, turns the South,
Resumes her old attire, and seeks to smooth
Her unkempt tresses at the glass of truth,
Her early faith shall find a tongue again,
New Wythes and Pinckneys swell that old refrain,
Her sons with yours renew the ancient pact,
The myth of Union prove at last a fact!
Then, if one murmur mars the wide content,
Some Northern lip will drawl the last dissent,
Some Union-saving patriot of your own
Lament to find his occupation gone.

Grant that the North's insulted, scorned, betrayed,
O'erreached in bargains with her neighbor made,
When selfish thrift and party held the scales
For peddling dicker, not for honest sales, — Whom shall we strike? Who most deserves our blame?

The braggart Southron, open in his aim,
And bold as wicked, crashing straight through all
That bars his purpose, like a cannon-ball?
Or the mean traitor, breathing northern air,
With nasal speech and puritanic hair,

1862
 Whose cant the loss of principle survives,
 As the mud-turtle e'en its head outlives ;
 Who, caught, chin-buried in some foul offence,
 Puts on a look of injured innocence,
 And consecrates his baseness to the cause
 Of constitution, union, and the laws ?

Praise to the place-man who can hold aloof
 His still unpurchased manhood, office-proof ;
 Who on his round of duty walks erect,
 And leaves it only rich in self-respect, —
 As MORE maintained his virtue's lofty port
 In the Eighth Henry's base and bloody court.
 As, in our time, unawed by brutal force,
 Unbribed by party, REEDER held his course.
 But, if exceptions here and there are found,
 Who tread thus safely on enchanted ground,
 The normal type, the fitting symbol still
 Of those who fatten at the public mill,
 Is the chained dog beside his master's door,
 Or CIRCE's victim, feeding on all four !

Give me the heroes who, at tuck of drum,
 Salute thy staff, immortal Quattlebum !

Or they who, doubly armed with vote and gun,
Following thy lead, illustrious Atchison,
Their drunken franchise shift from scene to scene,
As tile-beard Jourdan did his guillotine! —
Rather than him who, born beneath our skies,
To Slavery's hand its supplest tool supplies, —
The party felon whose unblushing face
Looks from the pillory of his bribe of place,
And coolly makes a merit of disgrace, —
Points to the footmarks of indignant scorn,
Shows the deep scars of satire's tossing horn;
And passes to his credit side the sum
Of all that makes a scoundrel's martyrdom!

Who knows not well these cankers of the North,
These modern Esaus, bartering rights for broth?
Taxing our justice, with their double claim,
As fools for pity, and as knaves for blame;
Who, urged by party, sect, or trade, within
The fell embrace of Slavery's sphere of sin,
Part at the outset with their moral sense,
The watchful angel set for Truth's defence;
Confound all contrasts, good and ill; reverse
The poles of life, its blessing and its curse;

And lose thenceforth from their perverted sight
The eternal difference 'twixt the wrong and right ;
To them the Law is but the iron span
That girds the ankles of imbruted man ;
To them the Gospel has no higher aim
Than simple sanction of the master's claim,
Dragged in the slime of Slavery's loathsome trail,
Like Chalier's Bible at his ass's tail !

Such are the men who, with instinctive dread,
Whenever Freedom lifts her drooping head,
Make prophet-tripods of their office-stools,
And scare the nurseries and the village schools
With dire presage of ruin grim and great,
A broken Union and a foundered State !
Such are the patriots, self-bound to the stake
Of office, martyrs for their country's sake :
Who fill themselves the hungry jaws of Fate,
And by their loss of manhood save the State.
In the wide gulf themselves like Curtius throw,
And test the virtues of cohesive dough ;
As tropic monkeys, linking heads and tails,
Bridge o'er some torrent of Ecuador's vales !

Such are the men who in your churches rave
To swearing point, at mention of the slave,
When some poor parson, haply unawares,
Stammers of freedom in his timid prayers ;
Who, if some foot-sore negro through the town
Steals northward, volunteer to hunt him down.
Or, if some neighbor, flying from disease,
Courts the mild balsam of the Southern breeze,
With hue and cry pursue him on his track,
And write Free-soiler on the poor man's back.
Such are the men who leave the pedler's cart,
While faring South, to learn the driver's art,
Or, in white neckcloth, soothe with pious aim
The graceful sorrows of some languid dame,
Who, from the wreck of her bereavement, saves
The double charm of widowhood and slaves !—
Pliant and apt, they lose no chance to show
To what base depths apostasy can go ;
Outdo the natives in their readiness
To roast a negro, or to mob a press ;
Poise a tarred schoolmate on the lyncher's rail,
Or make a bonfire of their birth-place mail !

So some poor wretch, whose lips no longer bear
 The sacred burden of his mother's prayer,
 By fear impelled, or lust of gold enticed,
 Turns to the Crescent from the Cross of Christ,
 And, over-acting in superfluous zeal,
 Crawls prostrate where the faithful only kneel,
 Out-howls the Dervish, hugs his rags to court
 The squalid Santon's sanctity of dirt ;
 And, when beneath the city gateway's span
 Files slow and long the Meccan caravan,
 And through its midst, pursued by Islam's prayers,
 The prophet's Word some favored camel bears,
 The marked apostate has his place assigned
 The Koran-bearer's sacred rump behind,
 With brush and pitcher following, grave and mute,
 In meek attendance on the holy brute !

— Men of the North ! beneath your very eyes,
 By hearth and home, your real danger lies. —
 Still day by day some hold of freedom falls,
 Through home-bred traitors fed within its walls. —
 Men whom yourselves with vote and purse sustain,
 At posts of honor, influence, and gain ;

The right of Slavery to your sons to teach,
And "South-side" Gospels in your pulpits preach;
Transfix the Law to ancient freedom dear
On the sharp point of her subverted spear,
And imitate upon her cushion plump
The mad Missourian lynching from his stump,
Till even Jeffreys' envious ghost complains
Of dangerous rivals in your Griers and Kanés; —
Or, in your name upon the Senate's floor
Yield up to Slavery all it asks, and more;
And, ere your dull eyes open to the cheat,
Sell your old homestead underneath your feet!
While such as these your loftiest outlooks hold,
While truth and conscience with your wares are sold,
While grave-browed merchants band themselves to aid
An annual man-hunt for their Southern trade,
What moral power within your grasp remains
To stay the mischief on Nebraska's plains? —
High as the tides of generous impulse flow,
As far rolls back the selfish undertow:
And all your brave resolves, though aimed as true
As the horse-pistol Balmawhapple drew,
To Slavery's bastions lend as slight a shock
As the poor trooper's shot to Stirling rock!

Yet, while the need of Freedom's cause demands
The earnest efforts of your hearts and hands,
Urged by all motives that can prompt the heart
To prayer and toil and manhood's manliest part ;
Though to the soul's deep tocsin nature joins
The warning whisper of her Orphic pines,
The north wind's anger, and the south wind's sigh,
The midnight sword-dance of the northern sky,
And, to the ear that bends above the sod
Of the green grave-mounds in the Fields of God,
In low, deep murmurs of rebuke or cheer,
The land's dead fathers speak their hope or fear ;
Yet let not passion wrest from Reason's hand
The guiding rein and symbol of command.
Blame not the caution proffering to your zeal
A well-meant drag upon its hurrying wheel,
Nor chide the man whose honest doubt extends
To the means only, not the righteous ends :
Nor fail to weigh the scruples and the fears
Of milder natures and serener years.
In the long strife with evil which began
With the first lapse of new-created man,
Wisely and well has Providence assigned
To each his part, — some forward, some behind ;

And they, too, serve, who temper and restrain
The o'erwarm heart that sets on fire the brain.
True to yourselves, feed Freedom's altar-flame
With what you have ; let others do the same.
Spare timid doubters ; set like flint your face
Against the self-sold knaves of gain and place :
Pity the weak ; but with unsparing hand
Cast out the traitors who infest the land, —
From bar, press, pulpit, cast them everywhere,
By dint of fasting, if you fail by prayer.
And in their place bring men of antique mould,
Like the grave fathers of your Age of Gold, —
Statesmen like those who sought the primal fount
Of righteous law, the Sermon on the Mount ;
Lawyers who prize, like Quincy (to our day Still spared, Heaven bless him !), honor more than pay,
And Christian jurists, starry-pure, like Jay ;
Preachers like Woolman, or like them who bore
The faith of Wesley to our western shore,
And held no convert genuine till he broke
Alike his servants' and the Devil's yoke ;
And priests like him who Newport's market trod,
And o'er its slave-ships shook the bolts of God !

So shall your power, with a wise prudence used,
Strong but forbearing, firm but not abused,
In kindly keeping with the good of all,
The nobler maxims of the past recall,
Her natural home-born right to Freedom give,
And leave her foe his robber-right — to live.
Live, as the snake does in his noisome fen !
Live, as the wolf does in his bone-strewn den !
Live, clothed with cursing like a robe of flame,
The focal point of million-fingered shame !
Live, till the Southron, who, with all his faults
Has manly instincts, in his pride revolts,
Dashes from off him, midst the glad world's cheers,
The hideous night-mare of his dream of years,
And lifts, self-prompted, with his own right hand,
The vile incumbrance from his glorious land !

So, wheresoe'er our destiny sends forth
Its widening circles to the South or North,
Where'er our banner flaunts beneath the stars
Its mimic splendors and its cloud-like bars,
There shall Free Labor's hardy children stand
The equal sovereigns of a slaveless land.

And when at last the hunted bison tires,
And dies o'ertaken by the squatter's fires ;
And westward, wave on wave, the living flood
Breaks on the snow-line of majestic Hood ;
And lonely Shasta listening hears the tread
Of Europe's fair-haired children, Hesper-led ;
And, gazing downward through his hoar-locks, sees
The tawny Asian climb his giant knees,
The Eastern sea shall hush his waves to hear
Pacific's surf-beat answer Freedom's cheer,
And one long rolling fire of triumph run
Between the sunrise and the sunset gun !”

My task is done. The Showman and his show,
Themselves but shadows, into shadows go ;
And, if no song of idlesse I have sung,
Nor tints of beauty on the canvas flung, —
If the harsh numbers grate on tender ears,
And the rough picture overwrought appears, —
With deeper coloring, with a sterner blast,
Before my soul a voice and vision passed,
Such as might Milton's jarring trump require,
Or glooms of Dante fringed with lurid fire.

O, not of choice, for themes of public wrong
I leave the green and pleasant paths of song —
The mild, sweet words, which soften and adorn,
For griding taunt and bitter laugh of scorn.
More dear to me some song of private worth,
Some homely idyl of my native North,
Some summer pastoral of her inland vales
And sea-brown hamlets, through where misty gales
Flit the dim ghosts of unreturning sails —
Lost barks at parting hung from stem to helm
With prayers of love like dreams on Virgil's elm ;
Nor private grief nor malice hold my pen ;
I owe but kindness to my fellow-men.
And, South or North, wherever hearts of prayer
Their woes and weakness to our Father bear,
Wherever fruits of Christian love are found
In holy lives, to me is holy ground.
But the time passes. It were vain to crave
A late indulgence. What I had I gave.
Forget the poet, but his warning heed,
And shame his poor word with your nobler deed.

SUMMER BY THE LAKE-SIDE.

I. — NOON.

WHITE clouds, whose shadows haunt the deep,
Light mists, whose soft embraces keep
The sunshine on the hills asleep!

O, isles of calm! — O, dark, still wood!
And stiller skies that overbrood
Your rest with deeper quietude!

O, shapes and hues, dim beckoning, through
Yon mountain gaps, my longing view
Beyond the purple and the blue,

To stiller sea and greener land,
And softer lights and airs more bland,
And skies — the hollow of God's hand!

Transfused through you, O mountain friends!
With mine your solemn spirit blends,
And life no more hath separate ends.

I read each misty mountain sign,
I know the voice of wave and pine,
And I am yours, and ye are mine.

Life's burdens fall, its discords cease,
I lapse into the glad release
Of nature's own exceeding peace.

O, welcome calm of heart and mind !
As falls yon fir-tree's loosened rind
To leave a tenderer growth behind,

So fall the weary years away ;
A child again, my head I lay
Upon the lap of this sweet day.

This western wind hath Lethean powers,
Yon noon-day cloud nepenthe showers,
The lake is white with lotus-flowers !

Even Duty's voice is faint and low,
And slumberous Conscience, waking slow,
Forgets her blotted scroll to show.

The Shadow which pursues us all,
Whose ever-nearing steps appall,
Whose voice we hear behind us call —

That Shadow blends with mountain gray,
It speaks but what the light waves say —
Death walks apart from Fear to-day!

Rocked on her breast, these pines and I
Alike on Nature's love rely;
And equal seems to live or die.

Assured that He, whose presence fills
With light the spaces of these hills,
No evil to His creatures wills,

The simple faith remains, that He Will do, whatever that may be,
The best alike for man and tree.

What mosses over one shall grow,
What light and life the other know,
Unanxious, leaving Him to show.

II. — EVENING.

You mountain's side is black with night,
While, broad-orbed, o'er its gleaming crown
The moon, slow-rounding into sight,
On the hushed inland sea looks down.

How start to light the clustering isles,
Each silver-hemmed! How sharply show
The shadows of their rocky piles,
And tree-tops in the wave below!

How far and strange the mountains seem,
Dim-looming through the pale, still light!
The vague, vast grouping of a dream,
They stretch into the solemn night.

Beneath, lake, wood, and peopled vale,
Hushed by that presence grand and grave,
Are silent, save the cricket's wail,
And low response of leaf and wave.

Fair scenes! whereto the Day and Night
Make rival love, I leave ye soon,
What time before the eastern light
The pale ghost of the setting moon

Shall hide behind yon rocky spines,
And the young archer, Morn, shall break
His arrows on the mountain pines,
And, golden-sandalled, walk the lake!

Farewell! around this smiling bay
Gay-hearted Health, and Life in bloom,
With lighter steps than mine, may stray
In radiant summers yet to come.

But none shall more regretful leave
These waters and these hills than I:
Or, distant, fonder dream how e'er
Or dawn is painting wave and sky;

How rising moons shine sad and mild
On wooded isle and silvering bay;
Or setting suns beyond the piled
And purple mountains lead the day;

Nor laughing girl, nor bearding boy,
Nor full-pulsed manhood, lingering here,
Shall add, to life's abounding joy,
The charmed repose to suffering dear.

Still waits kind Nature to impart
Her choicest gifts to such as gain
An entrance to her loving heart
Through the sharp discipline of pain.

Forever from the Hand that takes
One blessing from us others fall ;
And, soon or late, our Father makes
His perfect recompense to all !

O, watched by Silence and the Night,
And folded in the strong embrace
Of the great mountains, with the light
Of the sweet heavens upon thy face,

Lake of the Northland ! keep thy dower
Of beauty still, and while above,
Thy solemn mountains speak of power,

THE HERMIT OF THE THEBAID.

O, STRONG, upwelling prayers of faith,
From inmost founts of life ye start —
The spirit's pulse, the vital breath
Of soul and heart !

From pastoral toil, from traffic's din,
Alone, in crowds, at home, abroad,
Unheard of man, ye enter in
The ear of God.

Ye brook no forced and measured tasks,
Nor weary rote, nor formal chains ;
The simple heart, that freely asks
In love, obtains.

For man, the living temple is :
The mercy-seat and cherubim,
And all the holy mysteries,
He bears with him

And most avails the prayer of love,
Which, wordless, shapes itself in deeds,
And wearies Heaven for naught above
Our common needs.

Which brings to God's all perfect will
That trust of His undoubting child,
Whereby all seeming good and ill
Are reconciled.

And, seeking not for special signs
Of favor, is content to fall
Within the providence which shines
And rains on all.

Alone, the Thebaid hermit leaned
At noon-time o'er the sacred word.
Was it an angel or a fiend
Whose voice he heard ?

It broke the desert's hush of awe,
A human utterance, sweet and mild ;
And, looking up, the hermit saw
A little child.

A child, with wonder-widened eyes,
 O'erawed and troubled by the sight
 Of hot, red sands, and brazen skies,
 And anchorite.

“What dost thou here, poor man? No shade
 Of cool, green doums, nor grass, nor well,
 Nor corn, nor vines.” The hermit said:
 “With God I dwell.

“Alone with Him in this great calm,
 I live not by the outward sense;
 My Nile his love, my sheltering palm
 His providence.”

The child gazed round him. “Does God live
 Here only? — where the desert’s rim
 Is green with corn, at morn and eve,
 We pray to Him.

“My brother tills beside the Nile
 His little field: beneath the leaves
 My sisters sit and spin the while,
 My mother weaves.

“ And when the millet’s ripe heads fall,
And all the bean-field hangs in pod,
My mother smiles, and says that all
Are gifts from God.

“ And when, to share our evening meal,
She calls the stranger at the door,
She says God fills the hands that deal
Food to the poor.”

Adown the hermit’s wasted cheeks
Glistened the flow of human tears ;
“ Dear Lord ! ” he said, “ Thy angel speaks,
Thy servant hears.”

Within his arms the child he took,
And thought of home and life with men ;
And all his pilgrim feet forsook
Returned again.

The palmy shadows cool and long,
The eyes that smiled through lavish locks,
Home’s cradle-hymn and harvest-song,
And bleat of flocks.

“O, child!” he said, “thou teachest me
There is no place where God is not;
That love will make, where'er it be,
A holy spot.”

He rose from off the desert sand,
And, leaning on his staff of thorn,
Went, with the young child, hand in hand,
Like night with morn.

They crossed the desert's burning line,
And heard the palm-tree's rustling fan,
The Nile-bird's cry, the low of kine,
And voice of man.

Unquestioning, his childish guide
He followed, as the small hand led
To where a woman, gentle-eyed,
Her distaff fed.

She rose, she clasped her truant boy,
She thanked the stranger with her eyes;
The hermit gazed in doubt and joy
And dumb surprise.

And, lo! — with sudden warmth and light
A tender memory thrilled his frame ;
New-born, the world-lost anchorite
A man became.

“ O, sister of El Zara’s race,
Behold me ! — had we not one mother ? ”
She gazed into the stranger’s face ; —
“ Thou art my brother ? ”

“ O, kin of blood ! — Thy life of use
And patient trust is more than mine ;
And wiser than the gray recluse
This child of thine.

For, taught of him whom God hath sent,
That toil is praise, and love is prayer,
I come, life’s cares and pains content
With thee to share.”

Even as his foot the threshold crossed,
The hermit’s better life began ;
Its holiest saint the Thebaid lost,
And found a man !

BURNS.

ON RECEIVING A SPRIG OF HEATHER IN BLOSSOM.

No more these simple flowers belong
To Scottish maid and lover ;
Sown in the common soil of song,
They bloom the wide world over.

In smiles and tears, in sun and showers,
The minstrel and the heather,
The deathless singer and the flowers
He sang of live together.

Wild heather-bells and Robert Burns !
The moorland flower and peasant !
How, at their mention, memory turns
Her pages old and pleasant !

The gray sky wears again its gold
And purple of adorning,
And manhood's noonday shadows hold
The dews of boyhood's morning.

The dews that washed the dust and soil
From off the wings of pleasure,
The sky, that flecked the ground of toil
With golden threads of leisure.

I call to mind the summer day,
The early harvest mowing,
The sky with sun and clouds at play,
And flowers with breezes blowing.

I hear the blackbird in the corn,
The locust in the haying;
And, like the fabled hunter's horn,
Old tunes my heart is playing.

How oft that day, with fond delay,
I sought the maple's shadow,
And sang with Burns the hours away,
Forgetful of the meadow!

Bees hummed, birds twittered, over head
I heard the squirrels leaping,
The good dog listened while I read,
And wagged his tail in keeping.

I watched him while in sportive mood
I read “ The Twa Dogs’ ” story,
And half believed he understood
The poet’s allegory.

Sweet day, sweet songs! — The golden hours
Grew brighter for that singing,
From brook and bird and meadow flowers
A dearer welcome bringing.

New light on home-seen Nature beamed,
New glory over Woman ;
And daily life and duty seemed
No longer poor and common.

I woke to find the simple truth
Of fact and feeling better
Than all the dreams that held my youth
A still repining debtor :

That Nature gives her handmaid, Art,
The themes of sweet discoursing ;
The tender idyls of the heart
In every tongue rehearsing.

Why dream of lands of gold and pearl,
Of loving knight and lady,
When farmer boy and barefoot girl
Were wandering there already ?

I saw through all familiar things
The romance underlying ;
The joys and griefs that plume the wings
Of Fancy skyward flying.

I saw the same blithe day return,
The same sweet fall of even,
That rose on wooded Craigie-burn,
And sank on crystal Devon.

I matched with Scotland's heathery hills
The sweet-brier and the clover ;
With Ayr and Doon, my native rills,
Their wood-hymns chanting over.

O'er rank and pomp, as he had seen,
I saw the Man uprising ;
No longer common or unclean,
The child of God's baptizing !

With clearer eyes I saw the worth
Of life among the lowly ;
The Bible at his Cotter's hearth
Had made my own more holy.

And, if at times an evil strain,
To lawless love appealing,
Broke in upon the sweet refrain
Of pure and healthful feeling,

It died upon the eye and ear,
No inward answer gaining ;
No heart had I to see or hear
The discord and the staining.

Let those who never erred forget
His worth, in vain bewailings ;
Sweet Soul of Song ! — I own my debt
Uncancelled by his failings !

Lament who will the ribald line
Which tells his lapse from duty,
How kissed the maddening lips of wine
Or wanton ones of beauty ;

But think, while falls that shade between
The erring one and Heaven,
That he who loved like Magdalen,
Like her may be forgiven.

Not his the song whose thunderous chime
Eternal echoes render —
The mournful Tuscan's haunted rhyme,
And Milton's starry splendor !

But who his human heart has laid
To Nature's bosom nearer ?
Who sweetened toil like him, or paid
To love a tribute dearer ?

Through all his tuneful art, how strong
The human feeling gushes !
The very moonlight of his song
Is warm with smiles and blushes !

Give lettered pomp to teeth of Time,
So ' Bonnie Doon ' but tarry ;
Blot out the Epic's stately rhyme,
But spare his Highland Mary !

WILLIAM FORSTER.*

THE years are many since his hand
Was laid upon my head,
Too weak and young to understand
The serious words he said.

Yet, often now the good man's look
Before me seems to swim,
As if some inward feeling took
The outward guise of him.

* William Forster, of Norwich, England, died in East Tennessee, in the first month, 1854, while engaged in presenting to the governors of the States of this Union the address of his religious society, on the evils of slavery. He was the relative and coadjutor of the Buxtons, Gurneys, and Frys; and his whole life, extending almost to three score and ten years, was a pure and beautiful example of Christian benevolence. He had travelled over Europe, and visited most of its sovereigns, to plead against the slave-trade and slavery; and had twice before made religious visits to this country, under impressions of religious duty.

As if, in passion's heated war,
Or near temptation's charm,
Through him the low-voiced monitor
Forewarned me of the harm.

Stranger and pilgrim! — from that day
Of meeting, first and last,
Wherever Duty's pathway lay,
His reverent steps have passed.

The poor to feed, the lost to seek,
To proffer life to death,
Hope to the erring — to the weak,
The strength of his own faith.

To plead the captive's right; remove
The sting of hate from Law;
And soften in the fire of love
The hardened steel of War.

He walked the dark world, in the mild,
Still guidance of the Light;
In tearful tenderness a child,
A strong man in the right.

From what great perils, on his way,
He found, in prayer, release ;
Through what abysmal shadows lay
His pathway unto peace,

God knoweth : we could only see
The tranquil strength he gained ;
The bondage lost in liberty,
The fear in love unfeigned.

And I — my youthful fancies grown
The habit of the man,
Whose field of life by angels sown
The wilding vines o'erran —

Low bowed in silent gratitude,
My manhood's heart enjoys
That reverence for the pure and good
Which blessed the dreaming boy's.

Still shines the light of holy lives
Like star-beams over doubt ;
Each sainted memory, Christ-like, drives
Some dark possession out.

O friend! O brother! not in vain
Thy life so calm and true,
The silver dropping of the rain,
The fall of summer dew!

How many burdened hearts have prayed
Their lives like thine might be!
But more shall pray henceforth for aid
To lay them down like thee.

With weary hand, yet steadfast will,
In old age as in youth,
Thy Master found thee sowing still
The good seed of His truth.

As on thy task-field closed the day
In golden-skied decline,
His angel met thee on the way,
And lent his arm to thine.

Thy latest care for man — thy last
Of earthly thought a prayer —
O, who thy mantle, backward cast,
Is worthy now to wear?

Methinks the mound which marks thy bed
Might bless our land and save,
As rose, of old, to life the dead
Who touched the prophet's grave!

RANTOUL.*

ONE day, along the electric wire
His manly word for Freedom sped ;
We came next morn : that tongue of fire
Said only, " He who spake is dead ! "

Dead ! while his voice was living yet,
In echoes round the pillared dome !
Dead ! while his blotted page lay wet
With themes of state and loves of home !

Dead ! in that crowning grace of time,
That triumph of life's zenith hour !
Dead ! while we watched his manhood's prime Break from the slow bud into flower !

* No more fitting inscription could be placed on the tomb-stone of Robert Rantoul than this : " He died at his post in Congress, and his last words were a protest in the name of Democracy against the Fugitive Slave Law."

Dead! he so great, and strong, and wise,
While the mean thousands yet drew breath;
How deepened, through that dread surprise,
The mystery and the awe of death!

From the high place whereon our votes
Had borne him, clear, calm, earnest, fell
His first words, like the prelude notes
Of some great anthem yet to swell.

We seemed to see our flag unfurled,
Our champion waiting in his place
For the last battle of the world —
The Armageddon of the race.

Through him we hoped to speak the word
Which wins the freedom of a land;
And lift, for human right, the sword
Which dropped from Hampden's dying hand.

For he had sat at Sidney's feet,
And walked with Pym and Vane apart;
And, through the centuries, felt the beat
Of Freedom's march in Cromwell's heart.

He knew the paths the worthies held,
Where England's best and wisest trod :
And, lingering, drank the springs that welled
Beneath the touch of Milton's rod.

No wild enthusiast of the right,
Self-poised and clear, he showed alway
The coolness of his northern night,
The ripe repose of autumn's day.

His steps were slow, yet forward still
He pressed where others paused or failed ;
The calm star clomb with constant will —
The restless meteor flashed and paled !

Skilled in its subtlest wile, he knew
And owned the higher ends of Law ;
Still rose majestic on his view
The awful Shape the schoolman saw.

Her home the heart of God ; her voice
The choral harmonies whereby
The stars, through all their spheres, rejoice,
The rhythmic rule of earth and sky !

We saw his great powers misapplied
 To poor ambitions : yet, through all,
We saw him take the weaker side,
 And right the wronged, and free the thrall.

Now, looking o'er the frozen North
 For one like him in word and act,
To call her old, free spirit forth,
 And give her faith the life of fact—

To break her party bonds of shame,
 And labor with the zeal of him .
To make the Democratic name
 Of Liberty the synonym—

We sweep the land from hill to strand,
 We seek the strong, the wise, the brave,
And, sad of heart, return to stand
 In silence by a new-made grave !

There, where his breezy hills of home
 Look out upon his sail-white seas,
The sounds of winds and waters come,
 And shape themselves to words like these :

“Why, murmuring, mourn that he, whose power
Was lent to Party over long,
Heard the still whisper at the hour
He set his foot on Party wrong?”

“The human life that closed so well
No lapse of folly now can stain;
The lips whence Freedom’s protest fell
No meaner thought can now profane.

“Mightier than living voice his grave
That lofty protest utters o’er;
Through roaring wind and smiting wave
It speaks his hate of wrong once more.

“Men of the North! your weak regret
Is wasted here; arise and pay
To freedom and to him your debt,
By following where he led the way!”

THE DREAM OF PIO NONO.

It chanced, that while the pious troops of France
Fought in the crusade Pio Nono preached,
What time the holy Bourbons stayed his hands
(The Hur and Aaron meet for such a Moses),
Stretched forth from Naples towards rebellious Rome
To bless the ministry of Oudinot,
And sanctify his iron homilies
And sharp persuasions of the bayonet,
That the great pontiff fell asleep, and dreamed.

He stood by Lake Tiberias, in the sun
Of the bright Orient; and beheld the lame,
The sick, and blind, kneel at the Master's feet,
And rise up whole. And, sweetly over all,
Dropping the ladder of their hymn of praise
From heaven to earth, in silver rounds of song,
He heard the blessed angels sing of peace,
Good-will to man, and glory to the Lord.

Then one, with feet unshod, and leathern face
Hardened and darkened by fierce summer suns
And hot winds of the desert, closer drew
His fisher's haick, and girded up his loins,
And spake, as one who had authority :
“ Come thou with me.”

Lake-side and eastern sky

And the sweet song of angels passed away,
And, with a dream's alacrity of change,
The priest, and the swart fisher by his side,
Beheld the Eternal City lift its domes
And solemn fanes and monumental pomp
Above the waste Campagna. On the hills
The blaze of burning villas rose and fell,
And momentarily the mortar's iron throat
Roared from the trenches ; and, within the walls,
Sharp crash of shells, low groans of human pain,
Shout, drum-beat, and the clanging larum-bell,
And tramp of hosts, sent up a mingled sound,
Half wail and half defiance. As they passed
The gate of San Pancrazio, human blood
Flowed ankle high about them, and dead men
Choked the long street with gashed and gory piles —

A ghastly barricade of mangled flesh,
From which, at times, quivered a living hand,
And white lips moved and moaned. A father tore
His gray hairs, by the body of his son,
In frenzy ; and his fair young daughter wept
On his old bosom. Suddenly a flash
Clove the thick sulphurous air, and man and maid
Sank, crushed and mangled by the shattering shell.

Then spake the Galilean : “ Thou hast seen
The blessed Master and his works of love ;
Look now on thine ! Hear'st thou the angels sing
Above this open hell ? Thou God's high priest !
Thou the Vicegerent of the Prince of Peace !
Thou the successor of his chosen ones !
I, Peter, fisherman of Galilee,
In the dear Master's name, and for the love
Of his true Church, proclaim thee Antichrist,
Alien and separate from his holy faith
Wide as the difference between death and life,
The hate of man and the great love of God !
Hence, and repent ! ”

Thereat the pontiff woke,
Trembling, and muttering o'er his fearful dream.

“What means he?” cried the Bourbon. “Nothing more

Than that your majesty hath all too well
Catered for your poor guests, and that, in sooth,
The Holy Father’s supper troubleth him,”
Said Cardinal Antonelli, with a smile.

T A U L E R .

TAULER, the preacher, walked, one autumn day,
Without the walls of Strasburg, by the Rhine,
Pondering the solemn Miracle of Life ;
As one who, wandering in a starless night,
Feels, momentarily, the jar of unseen waves,
And hears the thunder of an unknown sea,
Breaking along an unimagi'd shore.

And as he walked he prayed. Even the same
Old prayer with which, for half a score of years,
Morning, and noon, and evening, lip and heart
Had groaned : “ Have pity upon me, Lord !
Thou seest, while teaching others, I am blind.
Send me a man who can direct my steps ! ”

Then, as he mused, he heard along his path
A sound as of an old man's staff among
The dry, dead linden-leaves ; and, looking up,
He saw a stranger, weak, and poor, and old.

“Peace be unto thee, father!” Tauler said ;
“God give thee a good day!” The old man raised Slowly his calm blue eyes. “I thank thee, son ;
But all my days are good, and none are ill.”

Wondering thereat, the preacher spake again ;
“God give thee happy life.” The old man smiled ;
“I never am unhappy.”

Tauler laid

His hand upon the stranger's coarse gray sleeve :
“Tell me, O father, what thy strange words mean.
Surely man's days are evil, and his life
Sad as the grave it leads to.” “Nay, my son,
Our times are in God's hands, and all our days
Are as our needs : for shadow as for sun,
For cold as heat, for want as wealth, alike
Our thanks are due, since that is best which is ;
And that which is not, sharing not His life,
Is evil only as devoid of good.
And for the happiness of which I spake,
I find it in submission to His will,
And calm trust in the holy Trinity
Of Knowledge, Goodness, and Almighty Power.”

Silently wondering, for a little space,
Stood the great preacher ; then he spake as one
Who, suddenly grappling with a haunting thought
Which long has followed, whispering through the dark

Strange terrors, drags it, shrieking, into light :
“ What if God’s will consign thee hence to Hell ? ”

“ Then,” said the stranger, cheerily, “ be it so.
What Hell may be I know not ; this I know —
I cannot lose the presence of the Lord ;
One arm, Humility, takes hold upon
His dear Humanity ; the other, Love,
Clasps his Divinity. So where I go
He goes ; and better fire-walled Hell with Him
Than golden-gated Paradise without.”

Tears sprang in Tauler’s eyes. A sudden light,
Like the first ray which fell on chaos, clove
Apart the shadow wherein he had walked Darkly at noon. And, as the strange old man
Went his slow way, until his silver hair
Set like the white moon where the hills of vine
Slope to the Rhine, he bowed his head and said :

“ My prayer is answered. God hath sent the man
Long sought, to teach me, by his simple trust,
Wisdom the weary schoolmen never knew.”

So, entering with a changed and cheerful step
The city gates, he saw, far down the street,
A mighty shadow break the light of noon,
Which tracing backward till its airy lines
Hardened to stony plinths, he raised his eyes
O'er broad façade and lofty pediment,
O'er architrave and frieze and sainted niche,
Up the stone lace-work chiselled by the wise
Erwin of Steinbach, dizzily up to where
In the noon-brightness the great Minster's tower,
Jewelled with sunbeams on its mural crown,
Rose like a visible prayer. “ Behold ! ” he said,
“ The stranger's faith made plain before mine eyes !
As yonder tower outstretches to the earth
The dark triangle of its shade alone
When the clear day is shining on its top,
So, darkness in the pathway of Man's life
Is but the shadow of God's providence,
By the great Sun of Wisdom cast thereon ;
And what is dark below is light in Heaven.”

SUGGESTED BY READING A STATE PAPER, WHEREIN THE HIGHER LAW IS INVOKED TO SUSTAIN THE LOWER ONE.

A pious magistrate! sound his praise throughout
The wondering churches. Who shall henceforth doubt

That the long-wished millennium draweth nigh?
Sin in high places has become devout,
Tithes mint, goes painful-faced, and prays its lie
Straight up to Heaven, and calls it piety!

The pirate, watching from his bloody deck
The weltering galleon, heavy with the gold
Of Acapulco, holding death in check
While prayers are said, brows crossed, and beads are told —

The robber, kneeling where the wayside cross
On dark Abruzzo tells of life's dread loss
From his own carbine, glancing still abroad
For some new victim, offering thanks to God! —

Rome, listening at her altars to the cry
Of midnight Murder, while her hounds of hell
Scour France, from baptized cannon and holy bell
And thousand-throated priesthood, loud and high,
Pealing Te Deums to the shuddering sky,
“Thanks to the Lord who giveth victory!”
What prove these, but that crime was ne’er so black
As ghostly cheer and pious thanks to lack?
Satan is modest. At Heaven’s door he lays
His evil offspring, and, in scriptural phrase
And saintly posture, gives to God the praise
And honor of the monstrous progeny.
What marvel, then, in our own time to see
His old devices smoothly acted o’er —
Official piety, locking fast the door
Of Hope against three million souls of men —
Brothers, God’s children, Christ’s redeemed — and then,
With uprolled eyeballs and on bended knee,
Whining a prayer for help to hide the key!

THE VOICES.

“ WHY urge the long, unequal fight,
Since Truth has fallen in the street,
Or lift anew the trampled light,
Quenched by the heedless million's feet ?

“ Give o'er the thankless task ; forsake
The fools who know not ill from good ;
Eat, drink, enjoy thy own, and take
Thine ease among the multitude.

“ Live out thyself ; with others share
Thy proper life no more ; assume
The unconcern of sun and air,
For life or death, or blight or bloom.

“ The mountain pine looks calmly on
The fires that scourge the plains below,
Nor heeds the eagle in the sun
The small birds piping in the snow !

“The world is God’s, not thine ; let Him
Work out a change, if change must be ;
The hand that planted best can trim
And nurse the old unfruitful tree.”

So spake the Tempter, when the light
Of sun and stars had left the sky.
I listened, through the cloud and night,
And heard, methought, a voice reply :

“Thy task may well seem over-hard,
Who scatterest in a thankless soil
Thy life as seed, with no reward
Save that which Duty gives to Toil.

“Not wholly is thy heart resigned
To Heaven’s benign and just decree,
Which, linking thee with all thy kind,
Transmits their joys and griefs to thee.

“Break off that sacred chain, and turn
Back on thyself thy love and care ;
Be thou thine own mean idol, burn
Faith, Hope, and Trust, thy children, there.

“ Released from that fraternal law
Which shares the common bale and bliss,
No sadder lot could Folly draw,
Or Sin provoke from Fate, than this.

“ The meal unshared is food unblest ;
Thou hoard'st in vain what love should spend ;
Self-ease is pain ; thy only rest
Is labor for a worthy end.

“ A toil that gains with what it yields,
And scatters to its own increase,
And hears, while sowing outward fields,
The harvest-song of inward peace.

“ Free-lipped the liberal streamlets run,
Free shines for all the healthful ray ;
The still pool stagnates in the sun,
The lurid earth-fire haunts decay !

“ What is it that the crowd requite
Thy love with hate, thy truth with lies ?
And but to faith, and not to sight,
The walls of Freedom's temple rise ?

“ Yet do thy work ; it shall succeed
In thine or in another’s day ;
And, if denied the victor’s meed,
Thou shalt not lack the toiler’s pay.

“ Faith shares the future’s promise ; Love’s
Self-offering is a triumph won ;
And each good thought or action moves
The dark world nearer to the sun.

“ Then faint not, falter not, nor plead
Thy weakness ; truth itself is strong ;
The lion’s strength, the eagle’s speed,
Are not alone vouchsafed to wrong.

“ Thy nature, which, through fire and flood,
To place or gain finds out its way,
Hath power to seek the highest good,
And duty’s holiest call obey !

“ Strivest thou in darkness ? — Foes without
In league with traitor thoughts within ;
Thy night-watch kept with trembling Doubt
And pale Remorse the ghost of Sin ? —

“Hast thou not, on some week of storm,
Seen the sweet Sabbath breaking fair,
And cloud and shadow, sunlit, form
The curtains of its tent of prayer?”

“So, haply, when thy task shall end,
The wrong shall lose itself in right,
And all thy week-day darkness blend
With the long Sabbath of the light!”

THE HERO.

“ O ! FOR a knight like Bayard,
Without reproach or fear ;
My light glove on his casque of steel,
My love-knot on his spear !

“ O ! for the white plume floating
Sad Zutphen's field above —
The lion heart in battle,
The woman's heart in love !

“ O ! that man once more were manly,
Woman's pride, and not her scorn ;
That once more the pale young mother
Dared to boast ' a man is born ' !

“ But, now life's slumberous current
No sun-bowed cascade wakes ;
No tall, heroic manhood
The level dulness breaks.

“O! for a knight like Bayard,
Without reproach or fear!
My light glove on his casque of steel,
My love-knot on his spear!”

Then I said, my own heart throbbing
To the time her proud pulse beat,
“Life hath its regal natures yet—
True, tender, brave, and sweet!

“Smile not, fair unbeliever!
One man, at least, I know,
Who might wear the crest of Bayard,
Or Sidney’s plume of snow.

“Once, when over purple mountains
Died away the Grecian sun,
And the far Cyllenian ranges
Paled and darkened, one by one—

“Fell the Turk, a bolt of thunder,
Cleaving all the quiet sky,
And against his sharp steel lightnings
Stood the Suliote but to die.

“ Woe for the weak and halting !
The crescent blazed behind
A curving line of sabres,
Like fire before the wind !

“ Last to fly and first to rally,
Rode he of whom I speak,
When, groaning in his bridle-path
Sank down a wounded Greek.

“ With the rich Albanian costume
Wet with many a ghastly stain
Gazing on earth and sky as one
Who might not gaze again !

“ He looked forward to the mountains,
Back on foes that never spare,
Then flung him from his saddle,
And placed the stranger there.

“ ‘ Allah ! hu ! ’ Through flashing sabres,
Through a stormy hail of lead,
The good Thessalian charger
Up the slopes of olives sped.

“ Hot spurred the turbaned riders ;
He almost felt their breath,
Where a mountain stream rolled darkly down
Between the hills and death.

“ One brave and manful struggle —
He gained the solid land,
And the cover of the mountains,
And the carbines of his band ! ”

“ It was very great and noble,”
Said the moist-eyed listener then,
“ But one brave deed makes no hero ;
Tell me what he since hath been ! ”

“ Still a brave and generous manhood,
Still an honor without stain,
In the prison of the Kaiser,
By the barricades of Seine.

“ But dream not helm and harness
The sign of valor true ;
Peace hath higher tests of manhood
Than battle ever knew.

“Wouldst know him now? Behold him,
The Cadmus of the blind,
Giving the dumb lip language,
The idiot clay a mind.

“Walking his round of duty
Serenely day by day,
With the strong man’s hand of labor
And childhood’s heart of play.

“True as the knights of story,
Sir Lancelot and his peers,
Brave in his calm endurance
As they in tilt of spears.

“As waves in stillest waters,
As stars in noonday skies,
All that wakes to noble action
In his noon of calmness lies.

“Wherever outraged Nature
Asks word or action brave,
Wherever struggles labor,
Wherever groans a slave—

“ Wherever rise the peoples,
Wherever sinks a throne,
The throbbing heart of Freedom finds
An answer in his own.

“ Knight of a better era,
Without reproach or fear !
Said I not well that Bayards
And Sidneys still are here ? ”

MY DREAM.

IN my dream, methought I trod,
Yesternight, a mountain road ;
Narrow as Al Sirat's span,
High as eagle's flight, it ran.

Overhead, a roof of cloud
With its weight of thunder bowed ;
Underneath, to left and right,
Blankness and abysmal night.

Here and there a wild-flower blushed,
Now and then a bird-song gushed ;
Now and then, through rifts of shade,
Stars shone out, and sunbeams played

But the goodly company,
Walking in that path with me,
One by one the brink o'erslid,
One by one the darkness hid.

Some with wailing and lament,
Some with cheerful courage, went;
But, of all who smiled or mourned,
Never one to us returned.

Anxiously, with eye and ear,
Questioning that shadow drear,
Never hand in token stirred,
Never answering voice I heard!

Steeper, darker! — lo! I felt
From my feet the pathway melt.
Swallowed by the black despair,
And the hungry jaws of air,

Past the stony-throated caves,
Strangled by the wash of waves,
Past the splintered crags, I sank
On a green and flowery bank —

Soft as fall of thistle-down,
Lightly as a cloud is blown,
Soothingly as childhood pressed
To the bosom of its rest.

Of the sharp-horned rocks instead,
Green the grassy meadows spread,
Bright with waters singing by Trees that propped a golden sky.

Painless, trustful, sorrow-free,
Old lost faces welcomed me,
With whose sweetness of content
Still expectant hope was blent.

Waking while the dawning gray
Slowly brightened into day,
Pondering that vision fled,
Thus unto myself I said :

“ Steep, and hung with clouds of strife,
Is our narrow path of life ;
And our death the dreaded fall
Through the dark, awaiting all.

“ So with painful steps we climb
Up the dizzy ways of time,
Ever in the shadow shed
By the forecast of our dread.

“Dread of mystery solved alone,
Of the untried and unknown ;
Yet the end thereof may seem
Like the falling of my dream.

“And this heart-consuming care,
All our fears of here or there,
Change and absence, loss and death,
Prove but simple lack of faith.”

Thou, O Most Compassionate !
Who didst stoop to our estate,
Drinking of the cup we drain,
Treading in our path of pain —

Through the doubt and mystery,
Grant to us Thy steps to see,
And the grace to draw from thence Larger hope and confidence.

Show Thy vacant tomb, and let,
As of old, the angels sit,
Whispering, by its open door :
“Fear not ! He hath gone before !”

THE BAREFOOT BOY.

BLESSINGS on thee, little man,
Barefoot boy, with cheek of tan !
With thy turned-up pantaloons,
And thy merry whistled tunes ;
With thy red lip, redder still
Kissed by strawberries on the hill ;
With the sunshine on thy face,
Through thy torn brim's jaunty grace :
From my heart I give thee joy —
I was once a barefoot boy !
Prince thou art — the grown-up man
Only is republican.
Let the million-dollared ride !
Barefoot, trudging at his side,
Thou hast more than he can buy,
In the reach of ear and eye —
Outward sunshine, inward joy :
Blessings on thee, barefoot boy !

O, for boyhood's painless play,
Sleep that wakes in laughing day,
Health that mocks the doctor's rules,
Knowledge never learned of schools,
Of the wild bee's morning chase,
Of the wild-flower's time and place,
Flight of fowl, and habitude
Of the tenants of the wood ;
How the tortoise bears his shell,
How the woodchuck digs his cell,
And the ground-mole sinks his well ;
How the robin feeds her young,
How the oriole's nest is hung ;
Where the whitest lilies blow,
Where the freshest berries grow,
Where the ground-nut trails its vine,
Where the wood-grape's clusters shine ;
Of the black wasp's cunning way,
Mason of his walls of clay,
And the architectural plans
Of gray, hornet artisans ! —
For, eschewing books and tasks,
Nature answers all he asks ;

Hand in hand with her he walks,
Face to face with her he talks,
Part and parcel of her joy, —
Blessings on the barefoot boy!

O, for boyhood's time of June,
Crowding years in one brief moon,
When all things I heard or saw
Me, their master, waited for.
I was rich in flowers and trees,
Humming-birds and honey-bees ;
For my sport the squirrel played,
Plied the snouted mole his spade ;
For my taste the blackberry cone
Purpled over hedge and stone ;
Laughed the brook for my delight
Through the day and through the night,
Whispering at the garden wall,
Talked with me from fall to fall ;
Mine the sand-rimmed pickerel pond,
Mine the walnut slopes beyond,
Mine, on bending orchard trees,
Apples of Hesperides !

Still, as my horizon grew,
Larger grew my riches too ;
All the world I saw or knew
Seemed a complex Chinese toy,
Fashioned for a barefoot boy !

O, for festal dainties spread,
Like my bowl of milk and bread, —
Pewter spoon and bowl of wood,
On the door-stone, gray and rude !
O'er me, like a regal tent,
Cloudy-ribbed, the sunset bent,
Purple-curtained, fringed with gold,
Looped in many a wind-swung fold ;
While for music came the play
Of the pied frogs' orchestra ;
And, to light the noisy choir,
Lit the fly his lamp of fire.
I was monarch : pomp and joy
Waited on the barefoot boy !

Cheerily, then, my little man,
Live and laugh, as boyhood can !

Though the flinty slopes be hard,
Stubble-speared the new-mown sward,
Every morn shall lead thee through
Fresh baptisms of the dew ;
Every evening from thy feet
Shall the cool wind kiss the heat :
All too soon these feet must hide
In the prison cells of pride,
Lose the freedom of the sod,
Like a colt's for work be shod,
Made to tread the mills of toil,
Up and down in ceaseless moil :
Happy if their track be found
Never on forbidden ground ;
Happy if they sink not in Quick and treacherous sands of sin.
Ah ! that thou couldst know thy joy,
Ere it passes, barefoot boy !

FLOWERS IN WINTER.

PAINTED UPON A PORTE LIVRE.

How strange to greet, this frosty morn,
In graceful counterfeit of flowers,
These children of the meadows, born
Of sunshine and of showers!

How well the conscious wood retains
The pictures of its flower-sown home—
The lights and shades, the purple stains,
And golden hues of bloom!

It was a happy thought to bring
To the dark season's frost and rime
This painted memory of spring,
This dream of summer time.

Our hearts are lighter for its sake,
Our fancy's age renews its youth,
And dim-remembered fictions take
The guise of present truth.

A wizard of the Merrimac —
So old ancestral legends say —
Could call green leaf and blossom back
To frosted stem and spray.

The dry logs of the cottage wall,
Beneath his touch, put out their leaves ;
The clay-bound swallow, at his call,
Played round the icy eaves.

The settler saw his oaken flail
Take bud, and bloom before his eyes ;
From frozen pools he saw the pale,
Sweet summer lilies rise.

To their old homes, by man profaned,
Came the sad dryads, exiled long,
And through their leafy tongues complained
Of household use and wrong.

The beechen platter sprouted wild,
The pipkin wore its old-time green ;
The cradle o'er the sleeping child
Became a leafy screen.

Haply our gentle friend hath met,
While wandering in her sylvan quest,
Haunting his native woodlands yet,
That Druid of the West ;—

And, while the dew on leaf and flower
Glistened in moonlight clear and still,
Learned the dusk wizard's spell of power,
And caught his trick of skill.

But welcome, be it new or old,
The gift which makes the day more bright,
And paints upon the ground of cold
And darkness, warmth and light !

Without is neither gold nor green ;
Within, for birds, the birch-logs sing ;
Yet, summer-like, we sit between
The autumn and the spring.

The one, with bridal blush of rose,
And sweetest breath of woodland balm,
And one whose matron lips uncloset
In smiles of saintly calm.

Fill soft and deep, O winter snow !

 The sweet azalia's oaken dells,
And hide the bank where roses blow,
 And swing the azure bells !

O'erlay the amber violet's leaves,
 The purple aster's brook-side home,
Guard all the flowers her pencil gives
 A life beyond their bloom.

And she, when spring comes round again,
 By greening slope and singing flood
Shall wander, seeking, not in vain,
 Her darlings of the wood.

THE RENDITION.

I HEARD the train's shrill whistle call,
I saw an earnest look beseech,
And rather by that look than speech
My neighbor told me all.

And, as I thought of Liberty
Marched hand-cuffed down that sworded street,
The solid earth beneath my feet
Reeled fluid as the sea.

I felt a sense of bitter loss —
Shame, tearless grief, and stifling wrath,
And loathing fear, as if my path
A serpent stretched across.

All love of home, all pride of place,
All generous confidence and trust,
Sank smothering in that deep disgust
And anguish of disgrace.

Down on my native hills of June,
And home's green quiet, hiding all,
Fell sudden darkness like the fall
Of midnight upon noon!

And Law, an unloosed maniac, strong,
Blood-drunken, through the blackness trod,
Hoarse-shouting in the ear of God
The blasphemy of wrong.

“O, Mother, from thy memories proud,
Thy old renown, dear Commonwealth,
Lend this dead air a breeze of health,
And smite with stars this cloud.

“Mother of Freedom, wise and brave,
Rise awful in thy strength,” I said;
Ah, me! I spake but to the dead;
I stood upon her grave!

LINES,

ON THE PASSAGE OF THE BILL TO PROTECT THE RIGHTS AND LIBERTIES OF THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE AGAINST THE FUGITIVE SLAVE ACT.

I SAID I stood upon thy grave,
My Mother State, when last the moon
Of blossoms clomb the skies of June.

And, scattering ashes on my head,
I wore, undreaming of relief,
The sackcloth of thy shame and grief.

Again that moon of blossoms shines
On leaf and flower and folded wing,
And thou hast risen with the spring!

Once more thy strong maternal arms
Are round about thy children flung—
A lioness that guards her young!

No threat is on thy closéd lips,
But in thine eye a power to smite
The mad wolf backward from its light.

Southward the baffled robber's track
Henceforth runs only ; hereaway,
The fell lycanthrope finds no prey.

Henceforth, within thy sacred gates,
His first low howl shall downward draw
The thunder of thy righteous law.

Not mindless of thy trade and gain,
But, acting on the wiser plan,
Thou 'rt grown conservative of man.

So shalt thou clothe with life the hope,
Dream-painted on the sightless eyes
Of him who sang of Paradise —

The vision of a Christian man,
In virtue as in stature great,
Embodied in a Christian State.

And thou, amidst thy sisterhood
Forbearing long, yet standing fast,
Shalt win their grateful thanks at last ;

When North and South shall strive no more,
And all their feuds and fears be lost
In Freedom's holy Pentecost.

THE FRUIT-GIFT.

LAST night, just as the tints of autumn's sky
Of sunset faded from our hills and streams,
I sat, vague listening, lapped in twilight dreams,
To the leaf's rustle, and the cricket's cry.
Then, like that basket, flush with summer fruit,
Dropped by the angels at the Prophet's foot,
Came, unannounced, a gift of clustered sweetness,
Full-orbed, and glowing with the prisoned beams
Of summery suns, and, rounded to completeness
By kisses of the south wind and the dew.
Thrilled with a glad surprise, methought I knew
The pleasure of the homeward-turning Jew,
When Eschol's clusters on his shoulders lay,
Dropping their sweetness on his desert way.

I said, "This fruit beseems no world of sin.
Its parent vine, rooted in Paradise,
O'ercrept the wall, and never paid the price
Of the great mischief — an ambrosial tree,

Eden's exotic, somehow smuggled in,
To keep the thorns and thistles company."
Perchance our frail, sad mother plucked in haste
A single vine-slip as she passed the gate,
Where the dread sword, alternate, paled and burned,
And the stern angel, pitying her fate,
Forgave the lovely trespasser, and turned Aside his face of fire ; and thus the waste
And fallen world hath yet its annual taste
Of primal good, to prove of sin the cost,
And show by one gleaned ear the mighty harvest lost.

A MEMORY.

HERE, while the loom of Winter weaves
The shroud of flowers and fountains,
I think of thee and Summer eves
Among the Northern mountains.

When thunder tolled the twilight's close,
And winds the lake were rude on,
And thou wert singing, Ca' the Yowes,
The bonny yowes of Cluden !

When, close and closer, hushing breath,
Our circle narrowed round thee,
And smiles and tears made up the wreath
Wherewith our silence crowned thee ;

And, strangers all, we felt the ties
Of sisters and of brothers ;
Ah ! whose of all those kindly eyes
Now smile upon another's ?

The sport of Time, who still apart
The waifs of life is flinging ;
O ! never more shall heart to heart
Draw nearer for that singing !

Yet when the panes are frosty-starred,
And twilight's fire is gleaming,
I hear the songs of Scotland's bard
Sound softly through my dreaming !

A song that lends to winter snows
The glow of summer weather —
Again I hear thee ca' the yowes
To Cluden's hills of heather !

T O C . S .

IF I have seemed more prompt to censure wrong
Than praise the right ; if seldom to thine ear
My voice hath mingled with the exultant cheer,
Borne upon all our Northern winds along ;
If I have failed to join the fickle throng
In wide-eyed wonder, that thou standest strong
In victory, surprised in thee to find Brougham's scathing power with Canning's grace combined ;
That he, for whom the nine-fold Muses sang,
From their twined arms a giant athlete sprang,
Barbing the arrows of his native tongue
With the spent shafts Latona's archer flung,
To smite the Python of our land and time,
Fell as the monster born of Crissa's slime,
Like the blind bard who in Castalian springs
Tempered the steel that clove the crest of kings,
And on the shrine of England's freedom laid
The gifts of Cumæ and of Delphi's shade —

Small need hast thou of words of praise from me.

Thou knowest my heart, dear friend, and well canst guess

That, even though silent, I have not the less
Rejoiced to see thy actual life agree
With the large future which I shaped for thee,
When, years ago, beside the summer sea,
White in the moon, we saw the long waves fall
Baffled and broken from the rocky wall,
That, to the menace of the brawling flood,
Opposed alone its massive quietude,
Calm as a fate ; with not a leaf nor vine
Nor birch-spray trembling in the still moonshine,
Crowning it like God's peace. I sometimes think

That night-scene by the sea prophetic —
(For nature speaks in symbols and in signs,
And through her pictures human fate divines) —
That rock, wherefrom we saw the billows sink

In murmuring rout, uprising clear and tall
In the white light of heaven, the type of one
Who, momentarily by Error's host assailed,
Stands strong as Truth, in greaves of granite mailed ;

And, tranquil-fronted, listening over all
The tumult, hears the angels say, Well done !

THE KANSAS EMIGRANTS.

WE cross the prairie as of old
The pilgrims crossed the sea,
To make the West, as they the East,
The homestead of the free !

We go to rear a wall of men
On Freedom's southern line
And plant beside the cotton-tree
The rugged Northern pine !

We're flowing from our native hills
As our free rivers flow ;
The blessing of our Mother-land
Is on us as we go.

We go to plant her common schools
On distant prairie swells,
And give the Sabbaths of the wild
The music of her bells.

Upbearing, like the Ark of old,
The Bible in our van,
We go to test the truth of God
Against the fraud of man.

No pause, nor rest, save where the streams
That feed the Kansas run,
Save where our Pilgrim gonfalon
Shall flout the setting sun!

We'll tread the prairie as of old
Our fathers sailed the sea,
And make the West, as they the East,
The homestead of the free!

SONG OF SLAVES IN THE DESERT.*

WHERE are we going ? where are we going,
Where are we going, Rubee ?

Lord of peoples, lord of lands,
Look across these shining sands,
Through the furnace of the noon,
Through the white light of the moon.
Strong the Ghiblee wind is blowing,
Strange and large the world is growing !
Speak and tell us where we are going,
Where are we going, Rubee ?

*“ Sebah, Oasis of Fezzan, 10th March, 1846. — This evening the female slaves were unusually excited in singing, and I had the curiosity to ask my negro servant, Said, what they were singing about. As many of them were natives of his own country, he had no difficulty in translating the Mandara or Bornou language. I had often asked the Moors to translate their songs for me, but got no satisfactory account from them. Said at first said, ‘O, they sing of Rubee’ (God) ‘What do you mean?’ I replied, impatiently. ‘O,

Bornou land was rich and good,
 Wells of water, fields of food,
 Dourra fields, and bloom of bean,
 And the palm-tree cool and green :
 Bornou land we see no longer,
 Here we thirst and here we hunger,
 Here the Moor-man smites in anger :
 Where are we going, Rubees ?

don't you know,' he continued, 'they asked God to give them their Atka?' (certificate of freedom). I inquired, 'Is that all?' Said : 'No ; they say, "Where are we going? The world is large. O God! where are we going? O God!"' I inquired, 'What else?' Said : 'They remember their country, Bornou, and say, "Bornou was a pleasant country, full of all good things ; but this is a bad country, and we are miserable!"' 'Do they say anything else?' Said : 'No ; they repeat these words over and over again, and add, "O God! give us our Atka, and let us return again to our dear home."'

"I am not surprised I got little satisfaction when I asked the Moors about the songs of their slaves. Who will say that the above words are not a very appropriate song? What could have been more congenially adapted to their then woful condition? It is not to be wondered at that these poor bondwomen cheer up their hearts, in their long, lonely, and painful wanderings over the desert, with words and sentiments like these ; but I have often observed that their fatigue and sufferings were too great for them to strike up this melancholy dirge, and many days their plaintive strains never broke over the silence of the desert." — Richardson's Journal.

When we went from Bornou land,
 We were like the leaves and sand, —
 We were many, we are few ;
 Life has one, and death has two :
 Whitened bones our path are showing,
 Thou All-seeing, thou All-knowing !
 Hear us, tell us where are we going,
 Where are we going, Rubees ?

Moons of marches from our eyes
 Bornou land behind us lies ;
 Stranger round us day by day
 Bends the desert circle gray ;
 Wild the waves of sand are flowing,
 Hot the winds above them blowing, —
 Lord of all things ! — where are we going ?
 Where are we going, Rubees ?

We are weak, but Thou art strong ;
 Short our lives, but Thine is long ;
 We are blind, but Thou hast eyes ;
 We are fools, but Thou art wise !

Thou, our morrow's pathway knowing
Through the strange world round us growing,
Hear us, tell us where are we going,
Where are we going, Rubee?

L I N E S

INSCRIBED TO FRIENDS UNDER ARREST FOR TREASON AGAINST THE SLAVE POWER.

THE age is dull and mean. Men creep,
Not walk ; with blood too pale and tame
To pay the debt they owe to shame ;
Buy cheap, sell dear ; eat, drink, and sleep
Down-pillowed, deaf to moaning want ;
Pay tithes for soul-insurance ; keep
Six days to Mammon, one to Cant.

In such a time, give thanks to God,
That somewhat of the holy rage
With which the prophets in their age
On all its decent seemings trod,
Has set your feet upon the lie,
That man and ox and soul and clod
Are market stock to sell and buy !

The hot words from your lips, my own,
To caution trained, might not repeat ;
But, if some tares among the wheat
Of generous thought and deed were sown,
No common wrong provoked your zeal ;
The silken gauntlet that is thrown
In such a quarrel rings like steel.

The brave old strife the fathers saw
For Freedom calls for men again
Like those who battled not in vain
For England's Charter, Alfred's law ;
And right of speech and trial just
Wage in your name their ancient war
With venal courts and perjured trust.

God's ways seem dark, but, soon or late,
They touch the shining hills of day ;
The evil cannot brook delay,
The good can well afford to wait.
Give ermined knaves their hour of crime ;
Ye have the future grand and great,
The safe appeal of Truth to Time !

THE NEW EXODUS.*

By fire and cloud, across the desert sand,
And through the parted waves,
From their long bondage, with an outstretched hand,
God led the Hebrew slaves!

Dead as the letter of the Pentateuch,
As Egypt's statues cold,
In the adytum of the sacred book
Now stands that marvel old.

“Lo, God is great!” the simple Moslem says.
We seek the ancient date,
Turn the dry scroll, and make that living phrase
A dead one: “God was great!”

*One of the latest and most interesting items of Eastern news is the statement that Slavery has been formally and totally abolished in Egypt.

And, like the Coptic monks by Mousa's wells,
We dream of wonders past,
Vague as the tales the wandering Arab tells,
Each drowsier than the last.

O fools and blind! Above the Pyramids
Stretches once more that hand,
And trancéd Egypt, from her stony lids,
Flings back her veil of sand.

And morning-smitten Memnon, singing, wakes ;
And, listening by his Nile,
O'er Ammon's grave and awful visage breaks
A sweet and human smile.

Not, as before, with hail and fire, and call
Of death for midnight graves,
But in the stillness of the noon-day, fall
The fetters of the slaves.

No longer through the Red Sea, as of old,
The bondmen walk dry shod ;
Through human hearts, by love of Him controlled,
Runs now that path of God !

THE HASCHISH.

OF all that Orient lands can vaunt
Of marvels with our own competing,
The strangest is the Haschish plant,
And what will follow on its eating.

What pictures to the taster rise,
Of Dervish or of Almeh dances !
Of Eblis, or of Paradise,
Set all aglow with Houris glances !

The poppy visions of Cathay,
The heavy beer-trance of the Suabian ;
The wizard lights and demon play
Of nights Walpurgis and Arabian !

The Mollah and the Christian dog
Change place in mad metempsychosis ;
The Muezzin climbs the synagogue,
The Rabbi shakes his beard at Moses !

The Arab by his desert well
Sits choosing from some Caliph's daughters,
And hears his single camel's bell
Sound welcome to his regal quarters.

The Koran's reader makes complaint
Of Shitan dancing on and off it ;
The robber offers alms, the saint
Drinks Tokay and blasphemes the Prophet !

Such scenes that Eastern plant awakes ;
But we have one ordained to beat it,
The Haschish of the West, which makes
Or fools or knaves of all who eat it.

The preacher eats, and straight appears
His Bible in a new translation ;
Its angels negro overseers,
And Heaven itself a snug plantation !

The man of peace, about whose dreams
The sweet millennial angels cluster,
Tastes the mad weed, and plots and schemes,
A raving Cuban filibuster !

The noisiest Democrat, with ease,
It turns to Slavery's parish beadle ;
The shrewdest statesman eats and sees
Due southward point the polar needle.

The Judge partakes, and sits ere long
Upon his bench a railing blackguard ;
Decides off-hand that right is wrong,
And reads the ten commandments backward !

O, potent plant ! so rare a taste
Has never Turk or Gentoo gotten ;
The hempen Haschish of the East
Is powerless to our Western Cotton !

BALLADS.

MARY GARVIN.

FROM the heart of Waumbek Methna, from the lake that never fails,
Falls the Saco in the green lap of Conway's intervales ;
There, in wild and virgin freshness, its waters foam and flow,
As when Darby Field first saw them, two hundred years ago.

But, vexed in all its seaward course with bridges,
dams, and mills,
How changed is Saco's stream, how lost its freedom of the hills,
Since travelled Jocelyn, factor Vines, and stately Champernoon
Heard on its banks the gray wolf's howl, the trumpet of the loon!

With smoking axle hot with speed, with steeds of fire and steam,

Wide-waked To-day leaves Yesterday behind him like a dream.

Still, from the hurrying train of Life, fly backward far and fast

The milestones of the fathers, the landmarks of the past.

But human hearts remain unchanged: the sorrow and the sin,

The loves and hopes and fears of old, are to our own akin;

And, in the tales our fathers told, the songs our mothers sung,

Tradition, snowy-bearded, leans on Romance, ever young.

O, sharp-lined man of traffic, on Saco's banks today!

O, mill-girl watching late and long the shuttle's restless play!

Let, for the once, a listening ear the working hand
beguile,
And lend my old Provincial tale, as suits, a tear or smile!

The evening gun had sounded from gray Fort Mary's walls ;
Through the forest, like a wild beast, roared and plunged the Saco's falls.

And westward on the sea-wind, that damp and gusty grew,
Over cedars darkening inland the smokes of Spur-wink blew.

On the hearth of Farmer Garvin blazed the crackling walnut log ;
Right and left sat dame and goodman, and between them lay the dog,

Head on paws, and tail slow wagging, and beside him on her mat,
Sitting drowsy in the fire-light, winked and purred
the mottled cat.

“Twenty years!” said Goodman Garvin, speaking sadly, under breath,
And his gray head slowly shaking, as one who speaks of death.

The Goodwife dropped her needles: “It is twenty years, to-day,
Since the Indians fell on Saco, and stole our child away.”

Then they sank into the silence, for each knew the other’s thought,
Of a great and common sorrow, and words were needed not.

“Who knocks?” cried Goodman Garvin. The door was open thrown;
On two strangers, man and maiden, cloaked and furred, the fire-light shone.

One with courteous gesture lifted the bear-skin from his head:

“Lives here Elkanah Garvin?” “I am he,” the Goodman said.

“Sit ye down, and dry and warm ye, for the night is chill with rain.”

And the Goodwife drew the settle, and stirred the fire amain.

The maid unclasped her cloak-hood, the fire-light
glistened fair

In her large, moist eyes, and over soft folds of dark brown hair.

Dame Garvin looked upon her: “It is Mary’s self I see!

Dear heart!” she cried, “now tell me, has my child come back to me?”

“My name indeed is Mary,” said the stranger, sobbing wild;

“Will you be to me a mother? I am Mary Garvin’s child!

“She sleeps by wooded Simcoe, but on her dying
day

She bade my father take me to her kinsfolk far away.

“ And when the priest besought her to do me no such wrong,
She said, ‘ May God forgive me ! I have closed my heart too long.

“ ‘ When I hid me from my father, and shut out my mother’s call,
I sinned against those dear ones, and the Father of us all.

“ ‘ Christ’s love rebukes no home-love, breaks no tie of kin apart ;
Better heresy in doctrine, than heresy of heart.

“ ‘ Tell me not the Church must censure : she who wept the Cross beside Never made her own flesh strangers, nor the claims of blood denied ;

“ ‘ And if she who wronged her parents, with her child atones to them,
Earthly daughter, Heavenly mother ! thou at least wilt not condemn !’

“So, upon her death-bed lying, my blessed mother spake ;
As we come to do her bidding, so receive us for her sake.”

“God be praised!” said Goodwife Garvin, “He taketh and He gives ;
He woundeth, but He healeth ; in her child our daughter lives.”

“Amen !” the old man answered, as he brushed a tear away,
And, kneeling by his hearth-stone, said, with reverence, “Let us pray.”

All its Oriental symbols, and its Hebrew paraphrase,
Warm with earnest life and feeling, rose his prayer of love and praise.

But he started at beholding, as he rose from off his knee,
The stranger cross his forehead with the sign of Papistrie.

“What is this?” cried Farmer Garvin. “Is an English Christian’s home
A chapel or a mass-house, that you make the sign of Rome?”

Then the young girl knelt beside him, kissed his trembling hand, and cried :

“O, forbear to chide my father ; in that faith my mother died !

“On her wooden cross at Simcoe the dews and sunshine fall,
As they fall on Spurwink’s grave-yard ; and the dear God watches all !”

The old man stroked the fair head that rested on his knee ;

“Your words, dear child,” he answered, “are God’s rebuke to me.

“Creed and rite perchance may differ, yet our faith and hope be one ;

Let me be your father’s father, let him be to me a son.”

When the horn, on Sabbath morning, through the still and frosty air,

From Spurwink, Pool, and Black Point, called to sermon and to prayer,

To the goodly house of worship, where, in order
due and fit,

As by public vote directed, classed and ranked the people sit ;

Mistress first and goodwife after, clerkly squire before the clown,

From the brave coat, lace-embroidered, to the gray
frock, shading down ;

From the pulpit read the preacher : " Goodman
Garvin and his wife

Fain would thank the Lord, whose kindness has followed them through life,

" For the great and crowning mercy, that their daughter, from the wild,

Where she rests (they hope in God's peace), has sent to them her child ;

“ And the prayers of all God’s people they ask that they may prove
Not unworthy, through their weakness, of such special proof of love.”

As the preacher prayed, uprising, the aged couple stood,
And the fair Canadian also, in her modest maiden-hood.

Thought the elders, grave and doubting, “ She is Papist born and bred ; ”

Thought the young men, “ ’Tis an angel in Mary Garvin’s stead ! ”

MAUD MULLER.

MAUD MULLER, on a summer's day,
Raked the meadow sweet with hay.

Beneath her torn hat glowed the wealth
Of simple beauty and rustic health.

Singing, she wrought, and her merry glee
The mock-bird echoed from his tree.

But, when she glanced to the far-off town,
White from its hill-slope looking down,

The sweet song died, and a vague unrest
And a nameless longing filled her breast—

A wish, that she hardly dared to own,
For something better than she had known.

The Judge rode slowly down the lane,
Smoothing his horse's chestnut mane.

He drew his bridle in the shade
Of the apple-trees, to greet the maid,

And ask a draught from the spring that flowed
Through the meadow, across the road.

She stooped where the cool spring bubbled up,
And filled for him her small tin cup,

And blushed as she gave it, looking down
On her feet so bare, and her tattered gown.

“Thanks!” said the Judge, “a sweeter draught
From a fairer hand was never quaffed.”

He spoke of the grass and flowers and trees,
Of the singing birds and the humming bees;

Then talked of the haying, and wondered whether
The cloud in the west would bring foul weather.

And Maud forgot her brier-torn gown,
And her graceful ankles bare and brown;

} And listened, while a pleased surprise
Looked from her long-lashed hazel eyes.

At last, like one who for delay
Seeks a vain excuse, he rode away.

Maud Muller looked and sighed: " Ah, me!
That I the Judge's bride might be!

" He would dress me up in silks so fine,
And praise and toast me at his wine.

" My father should wear a broadcloth coat;
My brother should sail a painted boat.

" I'd dress my mother so grand and gay,
And the baby should have a new toy each day.

" And I'd feed the hungry and clothe the poor,
And all should bless me who left our door."

The Judge looked back as he climbed the hill,
And saw Maud Muller standing still.

" A form more fair, a face more sweet,
Ne'er hath it been my lot to meet.

" And her modest answer and graceful air
Show her wise and good as she is fair.

“Would she were mine, and I to-day,
Like her, a harvester of hay :

“No doubtful balance of rights and wrongs,
Nor weary lawyers with endless tongues,

“But low of cattle and song of birds,
And health and quiet and loving words.”

But he thought of his sisters proud and cold,
And his mother vain of her rank and gold.

So, closing his heart, the Judge rode on,
And Maud was left in the field alone.

But the lawyers smiled that afternoon,
When he hummed in court an old love-tune ;

And the young girl mused beside the well,
Till the rain on the unraked clover fell.

He wedded a wife of richest dower,
Who lived for fashion, as he for power.

Yet oft, in his marble hearth's bright glow,
He watched a picture come and go :

And sweet Maud Muller's hazel eyes
Looked out in their innocent surprise.

Oft, when the wine in his glass was red,
He longed for the wayside well instead ;

And closed his eyes on his garnished rooms,
To dream of meadows and clover-blooms.

And the proud man sighed, with a secret pain :
“ Ah, that I were free again !

“ Free as when I rode that day,
Where the barefoot maiden raked her hay.”

She wedded a man unlearned and poor,
And many children played round her door.

But care and sorrow, and child-birth pain,
Left their traces on heart and brain.

And oft, when the summer sun shone hot
On the new-mown hay in the meadow lot,

And she heard the little spring brook fall
Over the roadside, through the wall,

In the shade of the apple-tree again
She saw a rider draw his rein.

And, gazing down with timid grace,
She felt his pleased eyes read her face.

Sometimes her narrow kitchen walls
Stretched away into stately halls ;

The weary wheel to a spinnet turned,
The tallow candle an astral burned,

And for him who sat by the chimney-lug,
Dozing and grumbling o'er pipe and mug,

A manly form at her side she saw,
And joy was duty and love was law.

Then she took up her burden of life again,
Saying only, "It might have been."

Alas for maiden, alas for Judge,
For rich repiner and household drudge !

God pity them both ! and pity us all,
Who vainly the dreams of youth recall

For of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these : " It might have been ! "

Ah, well ! for us all some sweet hope lies
Deeply buried from human eyes ;

And, in the hereafter, angels may
Roll the stone from its grave away !

THE RANGER.

ROBERT RAWLIN! — Frosts were falling
When the ranger's horn was calling
 Through the woods to Canada.
Gone the winter's sleet and snowing,
Gone the springtime's bud and blowing,
Gone the summer's harvest mowing,
 And again the fields are gray.
 Yet away, he's away!
Faint and fainter hope is growing
 In the hearts that mourn his stay.

Where the lion, crouching high on
Abraham's rock with teeth of iron,
 Glares o'er wood and wave away,
Faintly thence, as pines far sighing,
Or as thunder spent and dying,
Come the challenge and replying,
 Come the sounds of flight and fray.

Well-a-day! Hope and pray!
Some are living, some are lying
In their red graves far away.

Straggl'ing rangers, worn with dangers,
Homeward faring, weary strangers
Pass the farm-gate on their way;
Tidings of the dead and living,
Forest march and ambush, giving,
Till the maidens leave their weaving,
And the lads forget their play.

“Still away, still away!”

Sighs a sad one, sick with grieving,
“Why does Robert still delay!”

Nowhere fairer, sweeter, rarer,
Does the golden-locked fruit-bearer
Through his painted woodlands stray,
Than where hill-side oaks and beeches
Overlook the long, blue reaches,
Silver coves and pebbled beaches,
And green isles of Casco Bay;
Nowhere day, for delay,
With a tenderer look beseeches,

“Let me with my charmed earth stay!”

On the grain-lands of the mainlands
Stands the serried corn like train-bands,
 Plume and pennon rustling gay ;
Out at sea, the islands wooded,
Silver birches, golden-hooded,
Set with maples, crimson-blooded,
 White sea-foam and sand-hills gray,
 Stretch away, far away,
Dim and dreamy, over-brooded
 By the hazy autumn day.

Gayly chattering to the clattering
Of the brown nuts downward pattering,
 Leap the squirrels, red and gray.
On the grass-land, on the fallow,
Drop the apples, red and yellow ;
Drop the russet pears and mellow,
 Drop the red leaves all the day.
 And away, swift away
Sun and cloud, o'er hill and hollow
 Chasing, weave their web of play.

“Martha Mason, Martha Mason,
Prithee tell us of the reason
 Why you mope at home to-day :

Surely smiling is not sinning ;
Leave your quilling, leave your spinning ;
What is all your store of linen,
 If your heart is never gay ?
 Come away, come away !
Never yet did sad beginning
 Make the task of life a play.”

Overbending, till she 's blending
With the flaxen skein she 's tending,
 Pale brown tresses smoothed away
From her face of patient sorrow,
Sits she, seeking but to borrow,
From the trembling hope of morrow,
 Solace for the weary day.
 “ Go your way, laugh and play ;
Unto Him who heeds the sparrow
 And the lily, let me pray.”

“ With our rally, rings the valley —
Join us ! ” cried the blue-eyed Nelly ;
 “ Join us ! ” cried the laughing May :
“ To the beach we all are going,
And, to save the task of rowing,

West by north the wind is blowing,
Blowing briskly down the bay!
Come away, come away!
Time and tide are swiftly flowing,
Let us take them while we may!

“ Never tell us that you ’ll fail us,
Where the purple beach-plum mellows
On the bluffs so wild and gray.
Hasten, for the oars are falling ;
Hark, our merry mates are calling :
Time it is that we were all in,
Singing tideward down the bay ! ”
“ Nay, nay, let me stay ;
Sore and sad for Robert Rawlin
Is my heart,” she said, “ to-day.”

“ Vain your calling for Rob Rawlin !
Some red squaw his moose-meat ’s broiling,
Or some French lass, singing gay ;
Just forget as he ’s forgetting ;
What avails a life of fretting ?
If some stars must needs be setting,
Others rise as good as they.”

“ Cease, I pray ; go your way ! ”
Martha cries, her eyelids wetting ;
“ Foul and false the words you say ! ”

“ Martha Mason, hear to reason !
Prithee, put a kinder face on ! ”
“ Cease to vex me, ” did she say ;
“ Better at his side be lying,
With the mournful pine-trees sighing,
And the wild birds o’er us crying,
Than to doubt like mine a prey ;
While away, far away,
Turns my heart, forever trying
Some new hope for each new day.

“ When the shadows veil the meadows,
And the sunset’s golden ladders
Climb the twilight’s walls of gray —
From the window of my dreaming,
I can see his sickle gleaming,
Cheery-voiced, can hear him teaming
Down the locust-shaded way ;
But away, swift away
Fades the fond, delusive seeming,
And I kneel, again to pray.

" When the growing dawn is showing,
 And the barn-yard cock is crowing,
 And the horned moon pales away :
 From a dream of him awaking,
 Every sound my heart is making
 Seems a footstep of his taking ;
 Then I hush the thought, and say,
 ' Nay, nay, he 's away !'
 Ah ! my heart, my heart is breaking
 For the dear one far away."

Look up, Martha ! worn and swarthy,
 Glows a face of manhood worthy :
 " Robert ! " " Martha ! " all they say.
 O'er went wheel and reel together,
 Little cared the owner whither ;
 Heart of lead is heart of feather,
 Noon of night is noon of day !
 Come away, come away !
 When such lovers meet each other,
 Why should prying idlers stay ?

 Bare the timbers, quench the embers
 Of their red leaves, in December's
 Hoary rime and chilly spray.

But the hearth shall kindle clearer,
Household welcomes sound sincerer,
Heart to loving heart draw nearer,

When the bridal bells shall say :

“ Hope and pray, trust alway ;

Life is sweeter, love is dearer,
